Climax . . . Believe It, Or Don't.

As you may have noticed this last year, there have been a few minor changes in the school. For instance, there is the new incinerator, outside instead of inside, where on those special days of burnt sacrifice, we all got to choke during class. Another, this you may not have noticed, are those beautiful toilet paper dispensers, new this year only; next year they'll be old business and possibly garbage. Maybe you've also noticed the return of Richie Lahren, with long hair! Scandalous, huh? And then there is the mirror in the hall, put there to improve our self images, or destroy them. But all in all it's still Climax High. Well, not everything can change.

The Charmings And Then Some...

Homecoming 1987

Homecoming — that joyous time of year when the students at Climax High get to do strange things set up for them by the student council.

It all started on Monday with hat, sunglasses, and T-shirt day, working its way to the height of excitement with the coronation and football game on Friday afternoon.

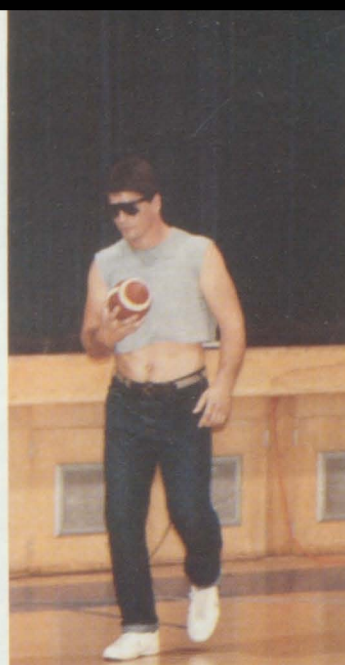

The royalty for this once-in-a-year occasion was his worship, Randy Sondrol and queen Michelle Vettern.

The football game was rather disappointing, with us taking the lead early, but ending with an upset.

Better luck next year dudes!

GOING FOR BROKE

Mike Finco described it as a "rebuilding year" for the Knights. The team lost a lot of good players. They came through with a 1-7, win-loss record. Mike Finco also said that we had one of the toughest seasons yet, and that we were doing okay. Our captains said that it was fun even though they didn't win every game. In fact, they only won one. They also said that practice was fun, which really surprised the Climax student body. Personally, I didn't think practice could be "fun", but the Knights are to be admired for making it fun.

13 wins, 10 losses. I guess you could say that the volleyball girls pulled off another successful season. This year we concentrated on teamwork, little did the girls know that when we all worked together, we played at our best. Coach Hayden and Coach Pierson harped and harped, they never thought we would finally catch on and start working as a team. We finally did and we ended up with a better than 50-50 record. Two girls made all-conference; they were Michelle Vetter and Holly Thoreson. Also Michelle Vetter made the all-tournament team. Naomi Keeney and Stacey Vetter were named honorable mention to the all-tournament team.

TV Addicts?

We asked the Freshmen if they thought that they were addicted to TV. Here are the results.

- 66% of the freshmen class watch TV 4 or more hours a day.

- 34% watch TV 5 or more hours a day.

Then we asked them if their favorite show was on and a friend asked them to go what would they do?

- 39% said they'd go out instead of watching the show.

- 61% said that it depended on who the friend was. (and one person said they'd go out and tape their show for when they come home.)

Do you flick on the TV immediately when you get home?

- 46% said no, they don't flick on the TV right away.

- 33% said yes.

- 21% said that they sometimes turn on the TV right when they get home.

We asked them how they decided what they were going to watch.

- 26% said they just turn the channel until they find something.

- 46% use a TV guide.

- 28% do both.

Then we asked them that if their plans were cancelled for the day, what they would do with their time?

- 93% said that they'd watch TV.

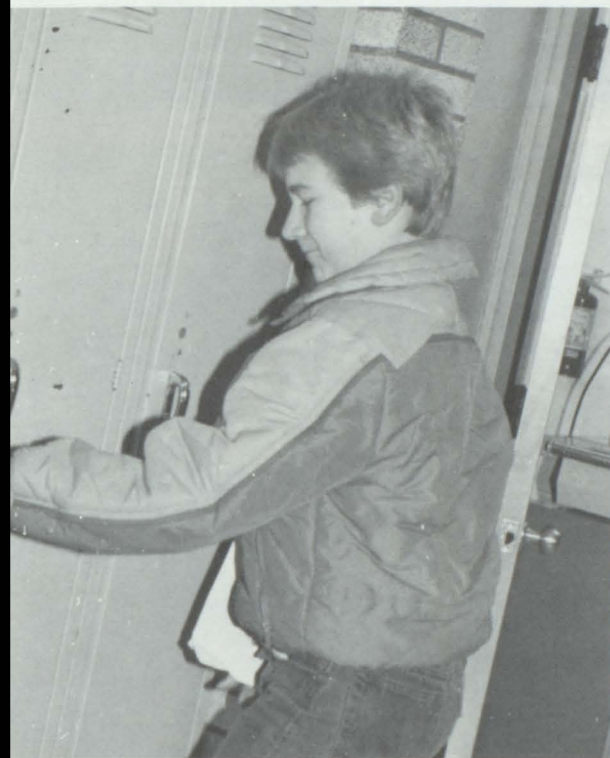

- 7% said that they'd visit friends or relatives.

By the looks of the survey, it seems that the Freshmen fit the mold of "TV addicts".

We asked the 8th graders how they felt about smoking in our school.

The first question they were asked was, "How would you feel about having a smoking section for students in this school?"

We gave them these choices:

- A. Yes, I am definitely in favor of this.
 - B. That wouldn't bother me.
 - C. I don't think that would be very appropriate.
 - D. No, I'm against having a smoking section in our school.
- 36% chose A.
28% chose B.
0% chose C.
38% chose D.

A. Then we asked them, "How do you feel about the faculty being able to smoke?"

C. Here are the choices we gave them:

- D. Totally against it, because if they can smoke then why can't we?

I feel it's bad because the faculty should be setting an example.

I think that's okay because they are older than we are.

I think it is okay, as long as we get to also.

- 45% chose A.
- 28% chose B.
- 9% chose C.
- 18% chose D.

The last question we asked them was, "Would it bother you, if you didn't smoke, to have people around you smoke?"

Here were their choices:

- A. Yes, it would bother me.
 - B. No, it wouldn't bother me.
 - C. It doesn't really matter.
- 36% chose A.
36% chose B.

Well, I don't know if Climax High School will ever have a student smoking area, but now we know how the class of 1990 feels!

Left: "I can't get my dumb locker shut again," said Allen Russell.

We asked the seventh graders where they spend their Christmas vacation. Most of the 7th graders said they were home for the holidays. But grandma's house was a close second with the lake coming in third. We then asked them where their favorite vacation spot is. We gave them these choices:

- A) At the lake
- B) At a relatives place
- C) At home
- D) Other

40% said they like to be at the lake. 10% said they like to go to a relatives house. 50% said other. Some of the places they put were Arizona, Australia, Hawaii, and at a Twins game.

Well, there is one thing that's certain, no matter where they go, they're just happy to be on vacation.

The Strange, Bizarre And The Unexpected

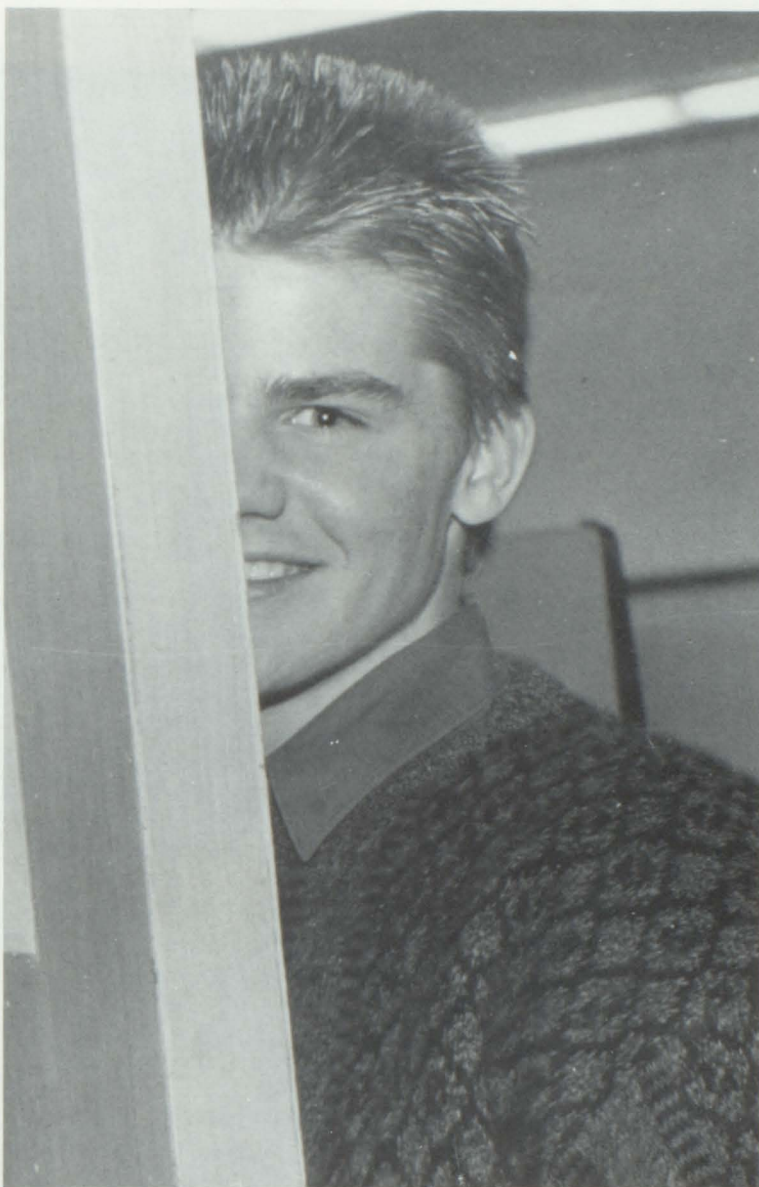

Here at Climax High many strange things have happened, and if you look closely, you may find some of the byproducts of the bizarre experiments of the students. Top right, we see Jonathon Chaffee's scientific attempt at freezing his car to preserve it indefinitely, for those people in future years who ask the question, "What was a Ford?"

To the right we find two of our students (Naomi Keeney and Holly Thoreson) testing the tolerance of other students by seeing how long people can take having ridiculous faces made toward them.

To the left, we find the amazing "Ham-stroid", a genetic mutation of a once harmless member of the rodent family. This beast is presently dwelling in the science room. If you are fortunate, you may be able to actually visit it and it's roommates.

Top left: We see head basketball coach, Mr. Storrusten with his MVP of the month. You may say "Yeah well, he doesn't look like much", but wait until you see him on the court.

Top right: We find Mr. Darin Vetter. Darin is not much for photos, but he was kind enough to let us get his better half. (Better half?)

Bottom: We find the man who might have brought us the theory of relativity, if Einstein hadn't beat him to it-Mr. Ringdahl. He is the man in charge of all the complicated equipment, here, in the science department at Climax High.

Fourth in district-not bad for a team that started out a little slow. The 1987-1988 boys basketball team ended the season with a 10 win and 10 loss record, despite the slow start. Our team had a lot of pizzazz on the court and they were fun to watch. David Rye always put on a good floor show, running up and down the court swinging his arms and jumping in the air. David wasn't the only one who got a little excited, the whole team made it look so easy and fun. The 1987-1988 team should be recognized as a team that really worked well together and had a good time doing it.

The Chuck Barris Rah- Rah Show

The Cheerleaders for the 1987-88 basketball season cheered their hearts out and got the fans going. They thought of some pretty funny days for the Snoball Week, like hippy day. Do you remember that, Spokely girls? We also crowned, or can we say T-shirted Mr. and Ms. Biceps. Tyler Grove and Nichelle Larson were chosen by the student body. The student body got to choose from the varsity teams. The week was a total success. It ended with the Generic Dance where everyone wore black and white. It was a lot of fun. Thanks to the cheerleaders for their hard work.

Weird Science

Into the world of the unknown we plummet headlong. Well maybe not quite that unknown, but, to some it's close. What I might be talking about is the beginning of some science-fiction movie, when in actuality I'm talking about the 1988 Climax High School Science Fair.

This year a couple of students, Jason Gale and Chris Peterson, (Top right) ripped it all of Climax into the world of "Superconductivity" in the dream that they will discover a new and more advanced superconductor, if possible. These boys had the pleasure of working with liquid nitrogen, (Top left) graciously donated by the University of North Dakota.

Along with the new we bring in the old, acupuncture, as demonstrated by Tracey Hamre and "the Science Room Mascot". (Middle right) This art has been practiced for who knows how long in the Orient. During the science fair Tracey showed people the different pressure points in the body and what forms of pain they can relieve.

Other students got in on the mechanics of engines. (Middle left) Jason Aanenson showed Darin Vetter the operation of a steam powered engine, which he went to the International competition with.

(Bottom) Last we find Trevor Spokely and David Blasey with their demonstration on how the gasoline engine works. Jason Gale, Chris Peterson, Eric Peterson, and Ryan Sedler attended the state Science Fair competition.

The 1988 track team had quite a successful season.

When the track team was brought up this year all we heard was that there might not be one, because there wasn't enough interest. Well, I think this year's team proved everyone wrong. I've always said, "It's not the quantity, but the quality."

This year there were even some letter winners the first meet. It isn't always easy to letter, take that from an ex-trackster.

The team got a new assistant coach this year, Bob Peterson. Well, I guess the team has never really had an assistant coach.

Congrats to Patti Durkin for advancing to region competition, and Mrs. Ruth Hayden for making the year so successful.

Save Your Love

The 1988 Junior-Senior prom was Saturday, May seventh. It was a night to remember, with the dinner and the program followed by the grand march and the dance.

The program went as follows: The welcome was given by Michon Spokely; the response by Tyler Grove. Mike Wesselink gets the credit for the Toast to the Juniors. George Taus did the Toast to the Seniors, Angela Hamre did the invocation. Half-way through the program was dinner. After dinner Susan Nichols gave the Junior class motto, followed by the toast to the faculty by Holly Thoreson. The Ode to the Seniors was done by Naomi Keeney and Jonathon Chaffee. Trista Hornung handled the "legalities" of the senior will, with Thomas Sedler giving the closing remarks.

The Grand March was held down by the pool. The turnout of spectators (parents, friends, and anyone else who wished to join) was rather intense.

The Grand March was followed by the dance, which was on and jammin' 'til midnight. Music was provided by Instant Request.

The After Prom party was a rather happenin' event, going from after Prom until four O'clock in the morning at the Climax Community Center. There were movies, food, and drawings for prizes every couple of minutes or so. John Wegge was the grand prize winner of a compact disc player.

Prom was quite the night to remember. Thanks lots to the juniors for making it happen.
